After taking a look at the establishment, they held a conference on the all-absorbingfreight question, and Mr. Lee, gave them the benefit of his years of research on this vexing problem. These gentlemen are ready and willing to do all that is necessary to give Kansas a chance to throw off this bondage in which we have teen held for years, and in their honest endeavors to collect facts and figures of wrong, as they now exist, they should be enlighten them. This is not a party question in any sense of the term, but the representative or Senator of the next Kansas house who does not endeavor to right the wrongs that now exist on the freight question, no matter to what party he may belong, will be forever buried in disgrace by the people who elected him. This question has got to be settled, and at this session of the legislature, for the people of Kausas, in all parties, have demanded it. The member who lags behind, or shows a passing interest only in this matter, had better not take his seat, for his constituency will make it a little disagreeable for him.
